

Submission 107

I work for a small business run mainly by a woman and her on again off again boyfriend. During their most recent break up, she accused him of either sleeping with me or trying to sleep with me, which was untrue. When i expressed i was not ok with the accusation i was told it was not about me. My boss then canvassed her fears with my coworkers. I have opted out and of the compulsory monthly staff meeting as i just cannot stomach being in the same room with people who have gossiped in such a way about me. I am currently looking for other work but this has had a direct impact on my ability to do my job to standard as i am knots over what has been said and worried if I make a single mistake i will lose my job despite the fact I've done nothing wrong.