

Immigrants not given a fair go

Refugees are not given a fair go in everyday Australian society. They are mocked by the Australian government and given a hard time by Australian Companies by either not employing them or employing at low pay. We need to remember they are also human beings and have feelings as well. Not only are these but they are children who are being looked up at such age even at 3 years old these children have hardly not lived a life they are still learning there local language. Seeing we are such a multicultural country there should be no problem with these fellow human beings to stay in our wonderful land. The citizens should realise that is a breach of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights right number 11, 3 and various other rights.

Families have come to this risking life and limb first escaping the war ridden country they have come from and then a hellish boat ride across the ocean being sick and all those gory details. The average Australian child has no idea on what is happening around them they in there country I'm sure that if they were informed about this atrocity they to would feel as strongly about this topic as I do. I think that people should just think about and say what if I was in that position seeing your house get blown up and even if you did survive getting out of the country and then the boat ride and if some how survived that you get looked up in detention centre and forgotten about or labelled a terrorist . So if feel as strongly about it as I do than speak out and think about that forgotten soul in those detention centres and rally to get them out. So please will someone think about the children.
